Since I heard no qualms against this formatting last report I have continued with it. As you can see, all of the numbers have gone up considerably since the last report, and while the knee-jerk reaction is that it is correlated to the price increases I have seen many of the new community members have come during the period of listing with Pexpay, MajesticBank, and the possibility of being listed on DCRDEX. Nevertheless, when the price was pumping there was a strong upward movement of community membership gain, but there was also considerable dips as the price fluctuated. I think that the Pexpay, MajesticBank, and DCRDEX (as well as the Decred Article) seemed to have recovered some of the lost memberships of price fluctuation.

The nomination stage of the next CFC Election ends today, and come tomorrow I will be posting up the new poll for the general election of the next CFC Election. Once this is over I will see about having the re-visitation of the topic of tokenomics as was previously stated would happen with the community – albeit later than expected.

Notes 2/28

After writing up most of this yesterday the numbers have slightly differed and has increased.
